

Let the Redeemed Say So!

July 31, 2022

I'll bet you've heard someone complain that God doesn't do anything in this broken world. He's not fixing the wars, not relieving poverty, not freeing the prisoners, not redeeming the oppressed. Of course, you and I know that God's been busy, but it does seem like those stories are seldom told. But who's in a position to tell those stories?

Psalm 107

1. The redeemed have a _____ to tell.
2. Redemption comes to those who “_____ _____ _____ _____ _____.”
3. Salvation is a _____ effort.
4. The redeemed tell _____ _____.

Additional Notes

Digging Deeper and Going Further

Psalm 107

I'll bet you've heard someone complain that God doesn't do anything in this broken world. He's not fixing the wars, not relieving poverty, not freeing the prisoners, not redeeming the oppressed. Of course, you and I know that God's been busy, but it does seem like those stories are seldom told. But who's in a position to tell those stories?

1. Why do you think the psalm begins with a call for thanks to the Lord, rather than ending with it?

2. Who does the psalmist call on to tell their stories (and where are they from)?

3. List out some of the catastrophe's the storytellers had endured (and were delivered from).

4. How did God deliver these storytellers?

5. Read verses 2, 42–43. Why do you think the psalmist insists on the redeemed telling their stories?

6. How might your story inspire others?
